FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
August 6, 2009

Since the latter part of May 2009 the Greenwich Police Department has investigated eight (8) complaints of credit card fraud involving two females who enter retail and professional buildings to commit the acts of theft.

The females described below appear to be a team that has committed similar thefts in other Connecticut jurisdictions, in particular, Avon, Glastonbury, New Haven (Yale) and CSP Troop C-Tolland since 2006.

The females enter retail or professional buildings with one of the females engaging staff in conversation while the other female searches the employee areas looking to remove credit cards from unattended purses before leaving the business establishments.

The females then use the stolen credit cards to make fraudulent purchases in towns located near the I-95 corridor.
